Dear Brother Dimondstein,

Today, the Canadian Union of Postal Workers stands in solidarity with the American Postal Workers Union on its National Day of Action for a strong public postal service. Your struggle is our struggle. North of the border, our bosses are likewise manufacturing a crisis in order to justify slashing services, privatizing operations and converting decent wages into low wages.

Canadian postal workers support a fair contract for APWU members and the expansion of postal services for better services to the public and for good stable jobs and healthy economies.

In Solidarity,
